STONE TELLS NEW STORY ON STAND

Admits That Part Of His Last Testimony Was Not Correct -- Talks Of Raising Campaign Fund For The Governor.

Madison, Wis., April 2.—Calling the bluff of the anti-Stephenson members of the legislature, who have alleged fraud existed in the legislature and that Stephenson's election was due to this fact, the assembly this morning adopted the Bray resolution which calls for an investigation of the clection.

State Game Warden Stone was again on the stand of the primary investigation bearing this morning. Ho had revised his story somewhat and stated that the first list of names of deputies that received money was not correct, but had been framed up and some of the men mentioned had backed down on their agreement to shoulder the burden.

The Hoosier Kitchen

Your great grandmother's kitchen differed as much from the kitchen of today as the stage coach differs from an engine. Her supplies were kept on hanging shelves in the cellar, down whose narrow steps she went several times to prepare a meal...

Today the HOOSIER CABINET has taken place, not only of the old-fushioned hanging shelves, but the modern kitchen as well.

There is as much need for a system in the kitchen as in the office or factory. By having a HOOSIER CABINET you save time, steps and health; when preparing a meal YOU STAND IN ONE PLACE, EVERYTHING IS WITHIN REACH and your kitchen is neat and clean.

See the display in our window and then call and let us prove these arguments.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S OPPOUNITY
President Taft has the fine opportunity of any chief executive and oppor-Civil war to ever executive Ke the of our government and estable upon something many estable 12 upon something more nearly al. husiness basis. His predecessores tinguished as he was for reformasent, never claimed any special tills in dealing with strictly financial que

The revenue side of public finance is only one aspect of a many-sided? problem, including not only, the balancing of income with expenditure, but also the selection of the objects of taxation and the distribution of the revenue burden upon direct or indirect sources, The critical study of results to determine the discontinuance of any policy which has not answered to a inir trial is involved. Not since David A. Wells in the early sixties made his classic report on the revision of revonue systems then in force, has there been any thoroughgoing analysis of conditions relating to the budget. There have been recommendations by every secretary of the treasury, suggesting remedies for abuses and improvements in methods, few of which congress has even discussed. The country has gone on, taking its revenue as it came and when there was not enough of it resorting to borrowing by the issue of more bonds or certificates of indebt-· edness.

The reason is that few people pay any attention to the effect of this constant resort to increased indebtedness upon the financial situation as a whole. This is the twelfth year under the Dingley tariff without any serions work having been done to relieve government bonds of their artificial character as bank note collateral. Yet if we were to have a war the present status of government securities already outstanding, and of others which would of necessity have to be issued in that contingency, is such that gold would quit this country with a remarkable freedom and promptness. Here the two great problems of publie finance and of banking reform overlap somewhat. Yet nothing that can' be done in the latter will reach the heart of the difficulty in the for mer. Nor will the problems of fed-.ornl'financo ceaso to be treated in their crude and amateurish fashion by congress until the habit of recognizing elementary principles of provision for future obligations be established. The responsibility lies mainly with the house and senate groups of half a dozen men each.

With an incumbent of the presidentinl chair who will exercise the veto power on bills that do not show financial foresight it may be possible to fix the responsibility for the chaotle condition of instional finance.

CLOSING DAYS

There are many reasons why the voters of Janesville should elect Wilbur Carlo Mayor, of Janesville and none why they should not. Mr. Carle stands for good government, for an economical government and represents no clique or faction. He is a republican of long standing, a businessman of known ability and his financial interests are such that he would watch over the expenditures and avort any possible waste in the city's finances. Mr. Carle was nominated by n rousing majority, but this fact should not deter any friends of his from coming to the polls on Tuesday 🕒 🚥 next to make his election more certain. Half the election was gained by his nomination, but the other and most important half is getting the vote out on election day. Mr. Carlo should have the vote of every citizen, believing in a good, careful and economical administration of the city's affairs.

ALDERMANIC FIGHTS There are three interesting aldermanic contests in the city that deserve close attention on the part of the voters of these wards and bespeak their hearty approval. Woven fence is always sold by the rod. It is a fact, however, that about 80% of the cost of manufacturing that rod is governed by the weight of galvanized wire put into its construction.

A rod of APEX 26-in, 6-in, stay hog fonce weighs about 81/2 pounds. Other makes of fence average nearly a pound less. A pound of good galvanized fence wire is worth 31/2 cents. Isn't it rather foolish economy to buy short weight fence at one, or two cents less per rod, and have double that amount taken out of the material, strength and service of your fence?

Pald Who Hold Taller Victims for Farm.

Toledo, O., Apr. 2.—The police are ballled by the mystery of the double murder of Ludwig Krueger, aged 66, and his wife, 63 years old, whose bodies were found yesterday in the debris of their home, which had been burned by their slayers.

The Krueger residence, one mile west of Toledo, was discovered ablazo and there was no trace of the Kruegers. When the ashes had cooled a search of the debris was made, but there was no evidence of the aged couple having been burned to death.

Later in the day two boys were difging in the cellar and noticed that the brick floor had been tampered with. One of them raised a brick and the face of the dead woman was revealed. More of the floor was taken up and the body of Mr. Kruoger was found, buried with his head at the feet of his wife. Both had been stabled to death, presumably with u

SHOUT

This is not an age of meek advertising. A single aunounceme the fact that you are still doing business on earth is not apt to create a stampede among prospective huyers. You have to shout your wares long and loud if you want to get business. You also have to make your advertising effective if you want it to be seen and read. A man may have the 1/4 best goods in the world, but if you want everybody to hear of them you must SHOUT, and often it is not the man who talks best that wins most, it's the man who talks loudest.

So it is with catalogues, booklets, folders, letter heads. No matter how attractive your offer or how well presented if the "Printing" is not attractive, or strong enough to get attention, if it is not tempting to compel people to read it, your efforts and your money are wasted.

Our Printing Department is equipped with modern facilities, for the printing of one, two and three color work. Every piece of machinery, all type and furniture is up-to-date. Not one thing in the entire department is old or thrushy.

We cater to good printing only and for the service we render, our prices are very reasonable.

Every lown farmer certainly apprecia Every Iowa farmer certainly appreciates the fact that small or light and immature seed can by no mehus he expected to produce no strong and vigorous plants as will the large, plump grains. This has 'been so thoroughly demonstrated, and requiring as it does so little amount of time to proporty prepare the seed that no to properly prepare the seed that no one can be excused for not giving this matter his most careful attention. In matter ms most careful attention, in considering the proper proparation of seed cats for planting, it will be taken up under two headings.

Fanning and Grading the Seed.

First: The benefits derived from faming and grading the seed are indeed very marked. By so doing, the light, chang grains, which are much less valuable for seed purposes, will be removed. Likewise, the weed seed may be eliminated. This is an may be eliminated. This is an especially important factor in some localities where woods such as mus-tard and others common to our oat crop are so plentiful. Again, not only will the wood seeds and light, inferior seed outs be removed, but the large plump out grains may be separated from the smaller, lighter ones. This is all important. The last couple of soasons have not been favorable for onts; resulting in a large amount of light grains. Especially has this been ever, we find even in desirable sen-sons that all 'the grains are not equally plump or equally large, but ou careful examination a very large part, in fact 30:16 50%, will be found to be either small or not sufficiently filled. In sonsons when the oats run filled. In seasons when the oats run light in weight, such as hat year when many of them were weighing from 18 to 24 lbs, per bushel, it will be found that if the oats are there oughly fanned and screened, in many instances it will be hard to save more than 15 to 20%. The importance of fauning and screening pats cannot be too forcibly impressed. The following table from Professor Zavitz's investigations will be of pacullar interest:

The Evening Chit-Chat

RECENT bride white standing in the front door of her new home taking leave of a caller was much dismayed to see fallen leaves and cobwebs on the steps. She had carefully swept the perch that morning, so she immediately began to apologize for their being there,

Her guest, an older woman, said, "My dear, let me give you a little pointer. Never call attention to the disaurocable things of life. Had I been in your place, I, would have exclaimed, 'Oh, Mrs. Her, do see that glorious sumer youder,' and then you would have directed my attention from the porch, and I should never have seen the leaves and dust at all. Let a caller come in, and if we see a bit of dust on our parlor table we immediately fear that we shall be published as a slack housekeoper. So we begin to offer apologies, whereas, undoubtedly, by keeping up a clover entertaining conversation with our guests, they would never notice the furniture at all. Calling attention to things always magnifies them. By talking of and dwelling on our errors, we make them a, thousand times larger and more serious.

There are so many beautiful and pleasant things in life to see and think and talk of, that it seems a pity that any of us should waste our time in noticing the disagreeable unimportant trifles that present them-

...... CHAPTER XXVIII.

In Which the Donna Isabel Goes Down The following night and day passed quietly enough, the weather holding clear, but with a mist slowly gathering in the south that seemed to threaten change. I observed just before sunset that this fog had so thickened and spread as to obscure nearly a third of the sky, and yet there was no veering of the wind or noticeable increase in the roll of the sea. The hulk was sinking, yet so slowly that we were only certain of the fact through constant measurements and the sight of water seeping in through the numerous cracks rovealed by the disappearing lee. It was a situation to get upon the nerves, yet I do not rememflor that it occusioned any great change in the routine of our life on

The negro Cole acted as though he had lost his mind, entirely, and after studying him: awhile I concluded to let him do as he pleased. He ate breakfast with the rest of us, but without speaking, and afterward, when we left the table; picked up the cleaver and made directly for the lazarette, I. called to him, but he merely rolled his eyes up at me from the blackness below and disappeared, the ley water shahing underfoot. We soon heard him vigorously slashing away at the ice, muttering constantly to himself. I went part way down the ladder, with a candle in my hand, whence I could see him tolling away at the end of the hole the men had excavated in the ice, though he paid no attention to my call. The water was fully six inches deep over the insarette deck, spinshing back and forth as the vessel rolled, and I could see drops of seawater squeezing in through the sides of her and dripping stendily down. There was nothing to do but leave the fellow alone, so after telling Dade to look down the ladder once in a while and keep an eye, on him I joined the others on deck.

"Cone clear nutty," commented Mc-Knight; tapping his head, "The very sight o' them yellow boys was too much for him.

"I only hope it wasn't my blow," I said soberly.

"Blow-hell! Why, that crack never hurt his skull, Mr. Stophens. The fellow was plumb drazy as soon as the box was open, He nover thought there was no much money in the world. Why, you ought to 'a' heard him tell of the junk he was goin' to buy when he got his share back to the States. Oh, he'll come out of his dream all right if we only let him alone for a

So we left him down there alone, pegging away in the dark. He came up, however, at the call for dinner, eating away heartily without uttering | high on the swell, I leaped and hu a word and going back to his solltary labor, paying not the slightest heed to any of us. When night came I compelled him to remove his lcy trousers lunks. When I looked in a few minutes later he was sound astrop.

That the wreck was slowly settling down under us was beyond doubt, and laden with ice as she was the sodden hull would probably drop at last like a stone. The thickening sky to the southward made me exceedingly, anxious; and just before dark we talked the conditions over together, each man the Donna Isabel would keep afloat several days yet, unless the weather became serious, Everything was made ready, however, for a hasty escape, and a deck-watch sot.

Dorls passed the greater part of my watch on deck with me, and as Kelly was on the poop we were the nearest to being alone together we had over It was an exceedingly dark been. night, but still an awful sonse of loneliness brooding over the black waters, the canvas forward flapping mournfully, the hugo rudder continually creaking to the slap of the waves, and a faint gurgle of water sounding from below. The dreariness of it affected us both, in spite of an effort at cheerfulness; besides, we had little to talk about except our perilous situation. Yet there was an noute pleasure in thus being together, and so she lingered on beside me, her eyes wandermuch of the time ellent, yot content, Finally, after urging her to go in out of the chill, I took a turn forward, even clambering up the ice hummeck to the fore peak, and testing the rise of water with a measuring red. As I returned aft, where Kelly was slapplug himself to keep warm, a light flaky snow began falling and soon powdered the decks.

I did not undress, but flung myself on the couch in the main cabin after replenishing the firs, and lay there some time, sturing up at the smoky deck-beams, listening to the slush of water in the lazarotte, half-frightened by the soddenness of the bulk's rolling. Yot my conviction that she would keep affoat for hours yet finally lulled me to sleep.

on the shoulder, and I started up, noting the gray dawn on the Tront windows, and reading the treth in his face before he attered a word.

The men were tumbling out as I pounded on the after state-room door. A glanco through the stern-ports brought my heart into my throat, the crosts of the pursuing waves were so Knowing that both women would be fully dressed, I flung open the door and began hastly gathering up their belongings; Within a brief minute we were outside on the deck. A single glance told us there was no time to waste. The sea ran somewhat heavier, yet with a regular swell, the Donna Isabel reeling and staggering like a drunken man. The vessel had sunk so deeply that her main-chains dipped, while her list permitted the water free entrance through the gap in the port bulwarks, and flooded the dock. There was a desperation to her and wallowing which made me think each plungo would prove her last. I swing Doris into the stern of the longboat, blidding her hold tight. The dip of the chains missed us by he barest inch; then we swung clear, lossed high on the creamy crest of a huge roller, which enabled us to look straight down on the sloping deck."

"Is every one here?" I asked, "All but Jom Cole, sir."

"Cole, where is he?" It was Johnson who answered, ..

"Well, all I know about it is, I naulod-him out of the bunk, and shook him wide awake. Then I left him to go out and rout out Kelly. That's the last I saw of him, sir, but it's a sure thing he ain't here."

De Nova had held of the tiller, and aprang forward, pushing past Banchoz, who was in the bow.

"Lay her nose close in where I can jump for the chains," I ordered sharp-ly, "We can't leave Cole behind to

It was a bit of a ticklish job the way the sea was running, and that lumping wreck sagging under, but the mate know his trade, and, as the bent rese on, my feet dangling in the froth, As the sodden hull rwung reeling over clambored up, and dropped to the deck. My Godt the follow had actually gone back into that icy hold to dig for gold! As I stood there, trembling, wondering if I could dare the ol. passage, I felt a sudden quiver of the deck, heard a sharp, ripping sound forward, a yell of mingled voices, and turned and ran for the rail. With all my strength I flung mysolf forthstraight out into the gray sea. Carrying Protection Too Far. An inhuman suggestion was made by a correspondent the other daythat we should protect English artists by putting a duty on old masters of foreign schools. It is not the average English artist of to-day who wants protection; the man who should be protected is the pour unfortunate creature who has to look at the artist's pictures.—London Saturday Re-

CONFIDENCE

We Back Up Our Statements With Money, We are so positive that we can cure

constinution, no matter how chronic it constipation, no matter now entonic in may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if we fail.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with 'cathartic drugs, Laxilves or cathartics do much They cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels and make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is danger-Constinution is caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those organs and restore them to healthier activity. The discovery of the active principle of our remedy evolved the labor of the world's greatest; research chemists. It possesses all the best quali-ties of the remedial active principle of the best known intestinal tonics, and it is particularly prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are exceedingly pleasant to take and are ideal for children. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They have a neutral action on other organs or glands. They do not purge or cause any inconvenience whatever. They will positively euro chronic or habitual constipation and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic all-ments. Try hexall Orderlies at our risk. 36 tablets 25c and 12 tablets 10c. Not New, Just Overlooked, We have every reason to believe that the statement that a new planet has been discovered at Harvard is untrue. All the indications point to it having been there for some time, though in the hurry of modern astron-BENEDICT, MORSELL & CALDWELL only it would appear to have been had see for yearself.
